INVESTIGATION OF TOWN SHAKEN AND HOSPITAL RESUMED DEADLE IN DANKE PEOPLE IN PANIC

Terrific Explosions at Bridgeport Cause Great Excitement, But Little Damage.

INSANE PATIENTS ESCAPE

Hundreds of Residents Ran Frantically About Streets, Fearing Earthquake.

(By Associated Press.)
BRIDGEPORT, CONN., May 14.—The explosion of four magnaines containing about 100,009 pounds of powder, situated on Success Hill in the northern section of Bridgeport early to-day shook up this section as if by an earthquake, but remarkable as it may seem, no person is thought to have been injured, and the property damage is chefty limited to the property damage is chiefly limited to the demolition of windows in houses and business buildings in the city and suburban sections. The magazines were in the storage The magazines were in the storage grounds of the Union Metallic Cartridge Company and were owned by the company. Two magazines which were destroyed contained smokeless and the other two black powder. A fifth magazine was practically demolished, but the cans of powder in it were not disturbed. The cause of the explosion is not yet determined.

The demolition of the magazines came in two separate explosions, the first and heavier at 430 A. M., lasting about thirty seconds, and the second about a minute

The full force of the explosion was felt in the city proper and apparently there is not a single large pane of plate glass left in business buildings. As for private residences rew escaped without broken windows. Immediately after the explosion the people of Bridgeport seemed certain that an earthquake had visited them and the scenes on the street were quite exciting, for hundreds of residents fied out of doors in their night clothes, carrying a few belongings, adolers carried their crying infants and men ran fratically about making inquiries. The mandemonium, however, lasted but a short time, as word quickly wen about that there had been an explosion.

COOLIE LABOR IN PERU.

Importation of Successors to Black Slaves Revives Discussion.

Importation of Successors to Black Slaves Revives Discussion. The recent landing at Callao, Peru, of many Chinese coolles, said to have been contracted for in China to work for various agricultural and other etherprises for a specified term of years, has aroused again the discussion of the coolle labor abuse in the South American republic. The facts concerning the labor question in Peru are very interesting, and throw a good deal of light on the industrial condition of the country, which is not to sary the least, prosperous under present surroundings.

Peru, which in 1820 possessed 41,288 negro slaves of which 80 per cent were employed as field hands on the plantations, found herself suddenly deprived of this class of labor by the abelition of slavery. Unfortunately her citizens were not of the energetic and enterprising class which, confronted by similar conditions, put their shoulders to the wheel in the Southern States of the United States after the Civil War and made their section of the country one of the most prosperous within the land. The Peruvian planters turned to the native Indian population of Peru to relieve them from the burden of working, the black slaves having originally been imported. But the Indians, no longer the patient illers of the soil which had been in the old incatimes, proved themselves until to supply the national need. The plantations were allowed that something must be done to remedy the evil of the progress of the country industrially would be absolutely inpossible.

remedy the evil of the progress of the country industrially would be absolutely impossible.

The first attempt to supplant the labor of the Indians by the importation of coolies was made in 1849, and the trade assumed great proportions soon after. In the 60's Chinese and Japanese coolies were imported in great numbers for work on the sugary plantations. Astonishing cruelties were practised on these people, who were kept in a condition little better than slavery. When the Chinese legation went to Peru, in 1882-784, these Asiatics were liberated and acattered all over the country. It is estimated that between the years 1849 and 1874 no less than $7,343 coolies were imported into Peru. Peruvian economists and thinkers view the question of importing contract labor with much concern. On the whole he problem of providing agricultural labor in Peru is a serious one.

The figures queted apply to the Pacing coast of Peru and a portion of the inter, for, excluding transandean Peru, the great region known locally as the Montana, whose life is still separate from that of the rest of the republic, and whose contact with the outer world is chiefly through the Amazon River and lapanese through Brazil and Amazon, and they are believed to be chiefly old contract laborers who have served their time and been attracted up the Amazon by the opportunities offered to independent labor. The number of these and annually.
